

BoxSpots

Box Spots, a digital map platform for businesses, provides users with a feasible environment to develop and customize their local guiding pamphlet to eradicate the usage of paper that is being wasted. Institutions — including schools, museums, exhibitions, and more — can utilize our website to build a digital tour guide for visitors to effortlessly locate significant "spots" such as statues, artworks, or even restrooms! After finishing up the map, owners may print out the QR codes and post them on a surface near each spot. Once someone scans the QR code, they can view a detailed description of a specific spot and a precise map conveying a list of other spots to visit provided by the institution. This way, not only it is easier to find a location within the hall, visitors can have a similar experience to accompanying a professional curator. Furthermore, businesses can contribute to the eco-friendly exercise as they are reducing the number of paper being wasted after each tour by letting visitors use their own devices. We strongly believe that technology can solve various social issues in a creative way, and we feel proud to provide such a beneficial option to institutions that advocate the common good.
